- right of access (Article 15 GDPR);
- right to rectification (Article 16 GDPR) or erasure (Article 17 GDPR);
- restriction of processing (Article 18 GDPR);
- right to data portability (Article 20 GDPR);
- right to object to processing (Article 21 GDPR).

3.2 Right to withdraw consent

If you have consented to the processing of your personal data by us, you can withdraw your consent at any time. The withdrawal of consent will not affect the lawfulness of processing based on consent prior to withdrawal.

3.3 Right to object

If your personal data is processed on the basis of a balancing of interests (point (f) of Article 6(1) GDPR: legitimate interests), you have the right to object, on grounds relating to your particular situation, at any time to the processing of data. If you exercise your right to object, we will ask you to tell us why we should no longer process your personal data as we have previously been doing. We shall examine the situation and then: stop processing data, change how we process data, or inform you of our compelling legitimate interests and continue data processing. We shall also continue data processing if necessary for the establishment, exercise, or defence of legal claims. You can object at any time to data processing for the purposes of direct marketing and data analysis. Should you do so, we shall stop processing your data.

3.4 Exercising your rights

In order to exercise your rights you have to let us know in person, over the telephone, or in writing. Any request should be sent to Zillertal Booking GmbH, Lakeside B03, A-9020 Klagenfurt, telephone no. +43 (0) 463/24 94 45 – 127. We can only provide you with information if you are able to identify yourself.

3.5 Complaining to the supervisory authority

If you take the view that the storage and processing of your personal data constitutes a breach of applicable data protection law or that your data protection rights have otherwise been breached, you also have the right to lodge a complaint with the supervisory authority. Please submit any complaints to the Österreichische Datenschutzbehörde [Austrian Data Protection Authority], Barichgasse 40-42, A-1080 Vienna.

4 Cookies and the integration of third party content

4.1 Cookies

We use so-called “cookies” on our website in order to recognise the same USER in the event of repeated visits to our website. Cookies are small text files that are lodged and stored by your internet browser on your computer. They are used in order to optimise our website and content. They are normally so-called “session cookies”, which are erased at the end of your visit. In some cases however, these cookies contain information that enables the USER to be automatically identified during future visits. Recognition is possible on the basis of the IP address stored in the cookies. The information thereby obtained is used in order to optimise our content and to enable our website to be accessed more easily. The USER can prevent cookies from being installed through the appropriate settings on his/her browser. However, please note that, in such an eventuality, the USER may not be able to use all functions of this website in full.

4.2 Google Analytics

ZIB uses Google Analytics on this page, a web analysis service of the company Google Inc., hereafter “Google”. Google Analytics uses so-called “cookies”. These are text files that are stored on the user’s computer, which make it possible to analyse how our website is used.

The information generated by these cookies, such as the time, place and frequency of visits to the website, including the IP address, are transmitted to Google and stored at that location.

We use Google Analytics on our website with an IP anonymization function. In such an eventuality, the user’s IP address will be abbreviated by Google and thereby anonymised within the Member States of the European Union or in other Contracting States of the Agreement on the European Economic Area. Google uses this information in order to assess how our website is used, to compile reports concerning website activities for us and to provide further services relating to usage of the website and the internet. Google may also where applicable transfer this information to third parties, where required by law or if third parties process these data on behalf of Google.

Google states that it will not under any circumstances cross-reference the user's IP address with other data held by Google. The user can prevent cookies from being installed through the appropriate settings on his/her browser software. However, please note that, in such an eventuality, it may not be possible to use all functions of the ZIB website to the full.

In addition, in most common browsers Google offers the option of disabling the service, this gives the user more control over which data are collected and processed by Google. Should the user activate this option, no further information concerning website visits will be transmitted to Google Analytics. However, if it is activated, this does not prevent information from being transmitted to us or to any other web analysis service that may be used by us.

5 Information concerning the transmission of data to third countries or to international organisations

The data processed by us are not transmitted to recipients in third countries or to international organisations.
